PAVING ESTIMATES HONORED; COUNCIL HAS BUSY EVENING

Third Street Grade Matter Discussed Preceding Meeting Tonight

TAX COLLECTIONS LARGE

Tax Collector J. W. Mathias Makes Statement of Funds Received—Requests Presented for Repairs at Various Points.

Estimates for two paving jobs were honored by council at its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening. One of them was that of the first estimate of Todd and Baker for the grading and paving of Gelder and McMahan alleys. It amounted to $805.20. The other was that of the second estimate of Thomas Arrigo for the grading of Third street from Lincoln avenue to Crest avenue, it amounting to $400.

Every member of council was present at the meeting with President D. R. Duvall in the chair.

One of the important matters talked about was that pertaining to the change of the grade of Third street at the Lookout avenue intersection Elevation of the street was proposed at a meeting last week as the best means of satisfying property holders of that district. Objections were raised Tuesday night, so the matter is up in the air again. Tonight at a special meeting a definite solution may be reached.

Reports of Borough treasurer R. R. Rush for August and of Tax Collector Mathias for collections in September were received. The treasurer's report was as follows:

Balance from last report	$11,925.93
Receipts	7,972.10
Total	$19,898.05
Disbursements	8,443.77
Balance in treasury	$11,454.28

Tax Collector Mathias reported that $27,747 had been collected for 1915 taxes. This was an especially good report.

Borough Clerk Ira L. Nickeson was instructed to notify M. E. Riggs that the street commissioner would commence on October 15 to clean up property purchased from him at the corner of Fourth street and Fallowfield avenue and that all his property should be removed from that located by that time.

J. W. Schlotter, assitant chief of the fire department asked that a fire gong be placed in his home at Seventh street and McKean avenue. Council granted the request.

The street commisisoner was authorized to secure some one to repair bad places in McKean, Fallowfield, Washington and other avenues.

A petition well signed by property owners in the neighborhood of Third street and Woodlawn avenue to have the water line extended to that point was received. It was turned over to the water committee.

Petitions for sidewalk repairs on Eighth street from Crest avenue to Shady avenue, on Ninth street from Meadow avenue to Oakland avenue and on Shady avenue from Eighth to Ninth streets was placed in the hands of President Duvall and Coun-

HEAVY COLLECTION OF SCHOOL TAXES REPORTED FOR SEPTEMRER

Tax Collector Mathias Informs School Board That He Took in $40,294.70 During the Month.

Tax collector J. W. Mathias reported a collection of 1915 school taxes amounting to $40,294.70 at a meeting of the schol board Tuesday evening, this being one of the best reports ever made. Collections of delinquent taxess amounted to over $1,232.54 for the years 1910 and 1914 inclusive.

The building committee of the board was authorized to see that a retaining wall was built at the rear of the Crest Ave. school grounds where paving has been done. Also the building committee was authorized to place padding on the end walls of the gymnasium to prevent injuries. The secretary was instructed to procure competitive bids for equipping the science department of high school.

MORGANZA BOARD COMES TO VISIT

Supt. Frank Penn Heads Party on Trip Here—Distribute Booklets

ITINERARY IS DESCRIBED

Headed by Frank Penn, superintendent of the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza, a party consisting of the board of managers of the school and officers were in Charleroi a brief time Tuesday evening, having come here when disappointed at the postponement of the visits of Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh and his party to this county. They distributed several of the booklets which had been prepared by Prof. John K. Lacock and Mr. Penn describing the itinerary in this county of the governor.

In the party with Mr. Penn were Judge W. D. Wallace of New Castle, president of the board. John S. Robb, Jr. of Pitsburg, solicitor; C. W. Houston, secretary; S. R. Wilson, a member of the board and H. L. Cockins of Canonsburg.

The booklet of Governor Brumbaugh's itinerary describes all the points to have been visited in the county, beginning at Charleroi. It has an historical value since it gives in brief the history of the different points, and facts concerning their foundation.

SEPTEMBER RECORDS BROKEN AT THE LOCK

Monthly Coal Trade Better Than That For Any September in Years—Lockmaster Paxton Makes His Report

Previous September records for coal shipments were broken at Lock No. 4 by this September trade, though the total was slightly below the excellent mark of August. The sand and gravel trade while not as good as in August was nevertheless heavy.

The coal suipments for the month through the lock totaled 18,255,000 bushels. This was 353,000 bushels less than August's record. Still the month's shipment was well above a good monthly average.

Lockmaster George W. Paxton gives out the following figures:

Up stream traffic—Lockages 461, steamers, 289 boats, barges and flats 1,444, sand 79,000 bushels gravel 32,000 bushels, merchandise 125 tons, livestock 28.

Down stream traffic—Lockages 402, steamers 289 boats, barges and flats 1,434, coal 18,255,000 bushels live stock 45.

The sand and gravel which went up the river was practically all consigned for Lock No. 6 where re building work is in progress.

W. C. T. U. MEETING HELD AT HOME OF MRS. JAMES JOHNS

The regular monthly meeting of the local W. C. T. U. was held at the residence of Mrs. James Johns of Lock Hill Tuesday afternoon. After a short business meeting Mrs. James Stewart took charge giving to those present a program which was both interesting and instructive. A pretty little ceremony concluded the program, when the president tied the "white ribbon" on the wrist of three small children of the home—thus dedicating them to the work and principles of the W. C. T. U. The union then adjourned to meet in November at the home of Mrs. Emma Dawson of Fallowfield avenue.

HOWARD SAMPSON, FORMERLY OF CHARLEROI DIES AT HIS HOME

Howard Sampson, aged 32 years of near Eldora died at his home Tuesday noon after an extended illness. Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral will be held from the Sampson home, and interment will be in the Monongahela cemetery. For some years Mr. Sampson was a valued employe of the Greensboro Gas company in Charleroi. He married here. His widow survives, also one son, John G. Sampson and his parents Mr. and Mrs. John G. Sampson, together with three sisters, Mrs. J. B. White of Monessen and Misses Helen and Alice at home.

CHANCES EVEN IN BIG SERIES SAYS BENDER

Former Championship Hurler With Philadelphia Athletics Briefly Reviews Strong Points of World Series' Contenders.

In the opinion of Chief C. A. Bender, former championship pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, it is toss-up as to whether the Boston Red Sox or the Philadelphia Nationals will win the world's series. Chief Bender came here to participate in a championship live bird shoot with George Marker today and answered a few questions concerning the world's series probabilities.

Chief Bender first mentioned that the newspapers gave the impression that Boston had the best chance to win.

"But what is your own opinion?" was asked.

"Well, if I was betting I'd flip a coin to decide which to support," he replied.

Chief Bender said Boston's chances would depend upon her hitting and base running and that Philadelphia's all round playing and the forcefulness of the pitching staff would help to carry her through, toting up as he could see it an even break.

LOCAL SUFFRAGISTS PLANNING FOR CAMPAIGN THIS MONTH

MAN ACCUSED OF PASSING BAD CHECKS TO ENTER GUILT PLEAS

J. B. Haywood, as His Right Name Is Found to be, Taken to Monongahela After Being Held Here.

The man arrested at Finleyville Monday midnight for passing worthless checks at numerous points and brought here was today turned over to Monongahela authorities for their attention, being a much wanted man in Monongahela. His right name as ascertained by Policeman Murphy Tuesday is J. B. Haywood and his home is in the Ohio valley.

Constable Elmer Jericho of Monongahela was here this morning to get the man. Before he was let go he pleaded guilty to local charges before Justice of the Peace Rice. It is understood he will plead guilty to the various charges against him and ask the extreme mercy of the court.

MORE BOYS THAN GIRLS IN HIGH

Unusual Feature at Educational Institution on the Hill—Enrollment 303

MANY ATTENDING COLLEGE

More boys than girls are enrolled in Charleroi high school. This is one unusual feature noted at the institution on the hill. Another is in the exceptional number of high school graduates and former high school students there are enroiled in numerous colleges, universities and conservatories over the country.

In high school the total enrollment is 303, there being 153 boys and 150 girls. Of the number 124 are non resident pupils. The high school is the second largest along the Monongahela between Pittsburg and Morgantown as well as the second largest in Washington county.

From 20 to 25 graduates or former students of high school are now enrolled in various colleges or schools, to say nothing of the large number attending normal school at the California state normal, or the large number engaged in business or professional pursuits. Apportionment among several of the colleges and schools are as follows: Allegheny college 4, University of Pittsburg 7, Washington and Jefferson college 2, State college 2, Carnegie Tech 1, Oberlin 1, Williams college 1, Mount Holyoke 1, Bellefonte Academy 1, Peabody Conservatory at Baltimore 1.

Graduates of Charleroi high schoo are able to enter without conditioning, some of the best colleges and universities in the country This places it on a par with the leading high schools.

Speakers to be Invited to Help With Rallies in Various Towns

PLANS OUTLINED AT MEETING

Valley Representatives Gather Here At Home of Mrs. J. B. Barth to Prepare For Fight—One Speaker to Come About October 18.

The Monongahela valley in the vicinity of Charleroi will be the center of a hot campaign within the next three weeks in the interests of woman suffrage. Toward the middle of this month or the latter part of it speakers of wide repute will stump the valley making speeches at different points. Rev. J. Leonard Levy of Pittsburg a hard worker for woman's rights has been asked to be one of the speakers, but his reply is that his time is entirely booked up until after election day. Local committees are therefore looking for others equally noted.

Mrs. J. B. Barth, chairwoman of the Charleroi central committee entertained at a meeting of woman suffrage enthusiasts from nearby towns Monday, when plans were discussed. Mrs. Henry Sutman represented Monongahela, Mrs. F. Colvin, California, and Mrs. E. Sphar, Roscoe.

The plan as now outlined is to have one speaker come to the valley about October 18. He—for this speaker is to be a man—will address meetings at Charleroi, Monongahela, California, Bentleyville, Roscoe and West Brownsville, among other points Enthusiasm will be worked up and the meetings will be of the old fashioned rally nature.

Majestic Tomorrow

"Trilby," perhaps the most popular book and play ever presented internationally comes to the Majestic tomorrow as cinimatized by the Equitable Motion Pictures Corporation, with the queenly screen artiste, Clara Kimball Young, and Wilton Lackaye, who originated the role of "Svengali" in the legitimate production in the leading roles, supported by Chester Barnett, Paul McAllister, and an all-star cast.

"Trilby," produced under the able direction of Maurice Tourneur, had its initial run at the Fortyfourth Street Theatre in New York and voted by "those who know" as being the best five-act feature production yet seen. The talk of Pittsburg when it played at the Grand week before last for one week. Full orchestra and admission the same as usual. 96-t2—*

SUPERINTENDENT HOUSTON ENTERTAINS ASSISTANTS

Elmore H. Houston, superintendent of the operating, finishing and shipping departments of the Pitsburg Steel Products company entertained his assistants and clerks at his home at the corner of Fourth street and Center avenue, North Charleroi Saturday evening, in appeciation of their efforts in making the month of September the record month. The department put out 4,517 tons. There were 20 present and the evening was spent pleasantly. Music and progressive euchre were enjoyed and a nice lunch was served.

GET THE HABIT

The result of the coming election is certain to have direct effect upon the next Presidential contest. Abandonment of the Republican policies and principles in November in Pennsylvania is certain to shake Republican confidence in every other state in the union. Republicans east and west, north and south, are looking to the Republicans of this state to blaze the way for a Republican triumph in the coming Presidential campaign next year.

The people of Pennsylvania as much, if not more than the people in any other state in the nation are anxious for the return of the Republican party to power. The Democrats are combining and playing hide-and-seek with every form of political discontent and all the isms known in politics.

The Presidential campaign will follow closely after the coming November election. Democratic success in November, no matter how it may be concealed, will have a bad effect in this state on the Presidential contest.

Republicans should rally 'round the Republican standard. The policies of the Republican party—protection and prosperity—should be the slogan and the Presidential contest in the state will be made easier.

Right now it is up to every Republican not only to do his duty for his party but to see to it that his neighbor does the same.

One hears a lot about donating to charity and helping along numerous worthy movements with financial contributions. It makes an impression and is all very fine indeed. Then talk is heard about helping an already efficient fire department and some of us make the mistake of classifying such help as charity. Aiding the fire department financially or otherwise is not charity, and the sooner this idea is dispelled the better. It is instead a business investment—an investment which brings very definite returns. The person who declines to do whatever he can in the interests of the department, from a selfish motive or no motive whatever is thoughtless, indiscreet and thoroughly inconsistent. Every citizen demands fire protection. He raves if he does not get it. Hence he should not object to paying for what he gets.

Late information is to the effect that the Monongahela Railway may institute passenger service on its new line from Brownsville to Fairmont on November 1, through service to be run. This is good news of course, but it would be better news if there was any definite assurance that it wasn't the regular monthly announcement.

Another of those ununderstandable crimes occurred at Monessen this week. A foreigner tried to persuade a girl 14 years his junior—a mere child—to marry him. She declined. Then to show his great affection for her he shot her. That she did not die was not his fault. Illiteracy is not to be credited as the cause of such crimes as this, but it does somehow seem to be a contributing factor.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Pa," said Johnny, who is a persistent knowledge-seeker, "what is a lawgiver."

"There isn't any such thing John-ny," replied the old gentleman who has been involved in considerable litigation in his time.

"But this book says that somebody was a great law-giver," persisted the youngster.

"Then it's a mistake," rejoined his father. "Law is never given. It's retailed in mighty small quantities at mighty high figures."

A plumber was working in the house of a wealthy stockbroker, when the lady of the house entered.

"Butler," she said, with a suspicious glance towards the plumber, "remove the silver from the sideboard and lock it up at once."

But the plumber was in no wise disconcerted.

"Tom," he sa. to his apprentice who accompanied him, "take my watch and chain and these coppers home to my missis at once; there seem to be dishonest people about this house."

THAT IDIOTIC FRIEND

MOST OF US HAVE HAD EXPERIENCE WITH HIM.

Worst of It All Is That the Surge of Hate in One's Heart Has to Be Suppressed, Though at Times It Almost Chokes.

Most of the annoyances of life are caused by friends. It doesn't annoy you when your enemy tries to get you in bad. You don't expect anything else from him. It's his regular business. You'd feel that he was a pretty measly sort of an enemy if he didn't try to puncture one of your tires! Then you can think and speak about him as a leprous horned toad. But you can't think or speak about a friend that way when he gets under your skin. He's your friend! That's all there is to it—he did it, and he's a feeble-minded anteater, but he's still your friend!

Only a dear friend would greet you when you're feeling peculiarly gay and fit with, "Sa-a-ay! What's the trouble? You look positively green, old horse! Don't you feel well? You ought to take a long rest, that's right: I don't like that hollow-eyed look of yours; perhaps it's your heart."

Or,

Come up behind you when you are looking calmly at some old prints in a window on the avenue and forgetting there are such things in the world as idiotic friends, and let his enormous flat nine-pound hand down on you between your shoulders so that you think for the moment that a prehistoric mule with hoofs on him the size of the rubbish receptacles on the corners has planted them in the interior of your lungs! Only a friend could inspire such diabolical and streaming hatred that rises up in the wreck of your breast, when you manage to turn and see what hit you!

Or,

If you happen to ask certain friends to go motoring several times and have them to dinner quite often and you let two or three Sundays go by without asking them, it is only dear friends who would, on meeting you next time, greet you with a Hudson Bay expression and a bucket of sarcasm!

Or,

Speaking of the sex that is responsible for all the poets, who but a true and tried friend would put over to her friend, "Oh, Camille, you were such a pretty girl, as a young girl, and you did have the loveliest clothes!"—James Montgomery Flagg, in the

The only bars in the store that would make a woman look ten years younger are the ones she can't afford to buy.

A man can learn a whole lot of things by going to college, but he never seems to learn that when he hasn't anything to say he shouldn't try to say it.

A whole lot of men are not half as much worried about their daily bread as they are about their daily gasoline.

A pretty man can't understand why so many good looking women marry such homely animals.

When he is courting her he is always telling her how unworthy of her he is. And then he marries her and proves it.

Anyway, the average man would rather play poker with a bad loser than play with a good winner.

It may sound good to the orator, but I doubt if a ten dollar a week garbage wagon chauffeur ever swells up with pride when he hears the orator talk about the dignity of labor.

EASY WAYS TO AVOID WASTE

Many Methods by Which the "Left-Overs" May Be Converted Into Appetizing Dishes.

Of course, in using "left-overs" something new must be added.

Tough steak may be finely chopped, seasoned with salt, pepper and onions, and fried in little cakes.

A nice stew can be made of the pieces of cold beef. Cut them in small pieces and cover with water, boil till tender, add an onion carrot, potatoes, a little turnip, a spoonful of rice, pepper and salt. Serve with slices of toasted bread.

Scraps of veal, mutton, lamb or lean pork alone or all together, make a fine meat pie, or, finely chopped up, may be heated in tomato sauce.

Remnants of fowl of any kind can be served with cream sauce; hashed with a dash of mustard and served on toast; used as sandwiches. The bones of fowl slowly simmered in water for a long time give the foundation for a rich soup.

Chop pieces of cold ham finely, season with onion and mustard and use for sandwiches, with scrambled eggs or in hash. Horseradish makes a good seasoning for this.

Cold potatoes may be fried, mashed, creamed and used in salads.

Other vegetables may be used in hash or stews, or as a vegetable salad.

Cold beans and corn warmed up in milk make a fine succotash.

Cold rice can be made into a pudding or used in muffins and griddle cakes.

Make hash and balls with left-over fish. Chop cold oysters finely and add to poultry dressing. Dry and pound all stale bread and use for rolling croquettes and fish in.

Fry cold oatmeal or wheat in butter and serve with cream and sugar.

"Waste not, want not," is the motto which should be hung in every kitchen; every kind of food left over can be utilized in some way.

MAXIMS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Don't forget to close the refrigerator door each time you use the box; the ice will last much longer.

If the aluminum cooking utensils turn black, try boiling tomato pairings in them and they will brighten.

It is best not to serve the same dish twice a week unless it be a vegetable, as everyone likes a variety.

The bone should be left in a roast; it will help to keep the juice and will add flavor and sweetness.

To clean finger marks on doors, rub with a piece of flannel dipped in kerosene oil. The marks will disappear like magic. Afterward wipe with a clean cloth wrung out of hot water to take away the smell, as it does not destroy the paint. Paraffin oil is also excellent for cleaning varnished hall doors.

Kumiss.

This dish is of great value in the sickroom, as it is one form in which milk seldom fails to be retained by the patient. Kumiss made at home in the following way is most satisfactory: Heat one quart of milk to 75 degrees Fahrenheit, add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of sugar and one-fourth of a yeast cake broken in pieces and dissolved in one tablespoonful of lukewarm water. Fill sterilized bottles to within one and one-half inches of the top. Cork and shake. Place bottles, inverted, where they can remain at a temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit for ten hours; then place in icebox for forty-eight hours, shaking occasionally to prevent cream from clogging mouth of bottles.—Woman's Home Companion.

Southern Biscuits.

Sift together two cupfuls of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, and a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder. Then rub in a tablespoonful of lard. When the flour looks like meal, stir into it the white of one egg beaten to a stiff froth, and mix with a cupful of milk. Beat with a spoon, then turn out on a floured board and knead very lightly. Roll out about one-fourth of an inch thick, brush with melted butter and fold. Press together lightly, but do not roll again. Cut in small rounds and bake in a very quick oven.

Codfish and Cheese.

Soak a pound of codfish six hours in tepid water, then let it come to a boil. When cold, pick into flakes with a fork and season with pepper. Heat a cupful of milk to a boil, stir into it a teaspoonful of butter rolled in two of prepared flour. Mix with the picked fish and pour into a baking dish. Strew grated cheese thickly on top and bake in a quick oven to a delicate brown. It is yet nicer if you add a raw egg before cooking it. Something real new.

Sausage Bundles.

Roll out plain paste in six-inch squares, rather thin. Cut frankfurt sausages in thin slices, rejecting the skin, and lay the slices in two rows in the center of the piece of paste; double, pinch ends together and fold as you would do up a bundle, wetting the edges to make them stick; then set away on ice until ready to bake. Bake in hot oven 15 minutes and serve hot with French or German mustard.

Minced Lamb.

Mince the lamb not too fine, add salt pepper, a drop or so of onion juice. Put on the spider with a teaspoonful of butter, teaspoonful flour, milk enough to moisten. Cook only a few minutes. Serve on slices of buttered toast.

NATIVE LIFE IN NEW GUINEA

Magic, Marrying and Murder Seem Closely Connected Practices Among the Innocent Aborigines.

The expedition led last year up the Fly river in British New Guinea by Sir Robert Clarke resulted in the discovery of some amusing customs, for the members of the party fell in with many who had never seen a white man before.

These natives practice magic which they call kurt-kurt—which kills men by suggestion. "No man among them," says Sir Robert, "is supposed to die naturally. The magic man tells him he is going to die, and he promptly does die. It may not be all hypnotism. Supposing a man is told that he is to die from a snake bite, it is not difficult to make certain of his death.

When a man is dead his relatives must get a head so that his spirit will rest in peace. They go out on a murdering expedition and get their head from the nearest tribe they can surprise. It doesn't matter to them whether the head is that of a man, woman or child.

"The girls will not marry a man unless he has a certain number of heads and has killed a man in personal combat. When a new house is built there must be more killing, because the posts of the house have to be sprinkled with human blood. The hideous warfare never ceases, for a tribe which has been attacked must seek revenge.

"The continual fear of surprise attacks is shown in the character of the houses. These were built in the trees. They were rested on scaffold poles fifty to sixty feet from the ground, were beautifully thatched and were chiefly constructed of palm leaves. They were loopholed in the sides for arrows and holes had been left in the floor through which stones could be dropped on the heads of an enemy.

"Large quantities of stones are kept in the houses. These tree dwellers also wear a kind of bamboo cuirass, which is arrow-proof and would be shot-proof. The arrows used are about five feet long and are projected from very powerful bows. I don't think a white man could draw their bows. I have known a man to be pierced through by an arrow from a distance of 200 yards."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

MORE REST.

Lady—You lazy tramp! Why are you not a son of toil?

Hobo—Because, lady, it is so much easier to be a son of soil.

Progressive.

"Well, I like your cheek!" exclaimed the indignant maid, after the young man had landed a kiss on her complexion.

"And I like yours," he rejoined. "But I imagine I would like your lips better."

Whereupon he planted another microbe breeder right under her nose.

Needed Sleep.

"Please give me the price to get into a moving-picture show?" pleaded the tramp to the man passing.

"But will you spend it to get to the movies?" asked the suspicious man.

"Indeed I will, sir. You see, since the cops have chased us off the park benches there's no other place we can go to sleep as cheap as the movies."

Pat's Solution.

"Plaze, sir," said an Irishman to a farmer going to market one day, "would yez be so obliging as to take me greatcoat here to B—wid ye?"

"Yes," said the farmer; "but how will you get it again?"

"Oh, that's mighty aisy, so it is," said Pat; "for shure I'll remain inside uv it!"—Tit-Bits.

It Certainly Would.

Flatbush—It is said that the letter-carriers in Portugal save themselves much work on Sunday by delivering letters in church.

Bensonhurst—Would think it might interfere with his enjoyment of the service if a man in his pew is handed a bunch of bills.

Some Progress, Anyway.

There are still many discouragements and backsets along the path of progress, but our memory goes back to the time when frequently one of the chief worries of a campaign manager was how to keep the candidate sober.—Columbus (Ohio) Journal.

What a Girl Can Do.

One of the authorities was asked whether a girl can love two men at the same time. Probably not. But she can give a sufficiently lifelike imitation of the passion to fool both of the men.—Topeka Capital.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

AGE NO BAR

Everybody in Charleroi is Eligible.

Old people stooped with suffering.
Middle age, courageously fighting.
Youth protesting impatiently;
Children, unable to explain;
All in misery from their kidneys.
Perhaps a little backache first.
Urinary disorders, dropsy may quickly follow.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.
Are endorsed by thousands.
Here's Charleroi testimony.

Mrs. W. McBride, 760 Crest avenue, Charleroi says: "One of the family was in misery from dull pains in the back. Doan's Kidney Pills were used and they brought great benefit. Later there was a return of the old trouble and less than one box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Piper Bros., Drug store removed the pain in the back and there has been no suffering since. We think there is nothing equal to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. McBride recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE HOUSE OF HOWE

By MAX HART.

(Copyright.)

Far out amid the cactus and the eastern tourists lies the town of Cab Horse. It is as typically western as the Pacific coast, and at one time it manifested all the symptoms of becoming a city.

Somebody discovered carbonated asphalt or rock salt or virgin gold in the vicinity of Potato Hill, and at the precise moment Cab Horse was about to take out a city charter, order a new post office from Washington, print up a set of letter-heads and prepare for business as a bona fide and budding metropolis.

Scientists who studied the rise and fall of Cab Horse were inclined for some time to lay the whole blame upon the slanting shoulders of Charley White. It is perfectly true that the bad luck attending Charley White immediately preceded the finding of precious mineral in the neighborhood of Potato Hill; but beyond that coincidence, there is nothing to turn the stern finger of accusation toward Mr. White.

The facts speak for themselves. For a long time Charley could not do so.

About the time Cab Horse began to boom and the gambling element swarmed in from surrounding territory, Ike Dorgan started the Silver Stag on the street which would have been named Main street if anyone had thought it needed a name.

The Silver Stag was a combination of all that is precious to the anti-gambling fraternity, the anti-dance section of the community and the Society for the Improvement of Morals in General.

Ike Dorgan accumulated thirteen thousand dollars by way of profit and sold out to a person named Howe, and it was Howe who brought Charley White to the thriving village of Cab Horse, the reason being that Mr. White was in undisputed possession of the finest singing, yodeling and noise-making voice west of Omaha.

About the same time Charley White discovered Cab Horse and its principal fount of recreation and amusement, the Silver Stag, Apache Nell discovered him.

Nell was a peculiarly fine specimen of young womanhood wasting its fragrance on the desert air, and if she had gone to New York, instead of squandering her time in Cab Horse, the Sunday papers would have printed her photograph and prominent artists would have beseeched her to pose for them.

The natural and subsequent eventuality was that Nell found many interesting qualities in Charley White, and he returned the compliment.

True, an irritated citizen named Kelley had threatened to remove most of Mr. White's regular features because of Nell's open preference for the singer, but that little disturbance passed over without calamity.

Kelley attempted to drown his sorrow in the well-known liquid made for that purpose, and finally died of a broken heart, superinduced by a broken stomach, a couple of broken kidneys and a badly fractured liver.

At the very height of his popularity Charley White suddenly and inexplicably went into retirement.

The singer came down from his pedestal and his song was hushed.

Woe filled the throbbing atmosphere of the Silver Stag and the chief bouncer explained without avail.

While the regular patrons of the Silver Stag faced this new sorrow in melancholy and dejection, there was one who felt the disappointment greatest.

Cassandra had come in from the East—Lady Cassandra, with the soft Italian voice and the dark eyes of the land at the foot of the Alps.

She had appeared among the dancers in the Silver Stag, and immediately men and women noticed her.

Apache Nell joked with Charley White about it.

"The dark and mysterious lady appears to be hypnotized when you sing," chuckled Nell after Cassandra had manifested her interest for a week or more.

There was a vague note of jealousy in her voice.

"She's a funny-looking wop," Charley retorted indifferently. "Let's take a walk before the nine o'clock session."

For a month Cassandra paid silent devotion before the shrine of melody and at the end of that time her grief was great.

Charley White ceased to sing.

"Why?" demanded Howe.

"There's something the matter with my throat," Charley explained.

"They've come to like your singing tremendously," Howe pleaded. "See a doctor. Fix your throat up as soon as you can, and when you come back there's an extra five a week tacked on your pay."

The solitary Cab Horse physician peered down the White throat with fitting solemnity at the earnest request of Mr. Howe, took charge of a four-dollar fee and announced that the trouble was probably a strain.

"He will be well in a week," declared the physician.

"I hope so," Howe replied gloomily.

But Mr. White was not well in a week, or in two or four weeks.

He mooned about Cab Horse and avoided the Silver Stag. He hated to face the crowds and explain over and over that his throat had gone back on him.

In consequence business fell off, and Howe pleaded with tears in his eyes.

"I can't sing, if I can't sing," Charley retorted on these occasions. "I couldn't produce a note, no matter how hard I tried."

"Talk to him," Howe had begged of Apache Nell. "Rub his fool throat. Make him get better." Nell promised to do her best, but the lost harmony and the tender, soothing lilt of "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" no longer was wafted across the dismal tables of the Silver Stag.

The Lady Cassandra disappeared without warning.

Without the witchery of Charley's tenor voice the varied attractions of the Silver Stag palled upon her. Whither she went no one knew, and few seemed to care.

Time trudged by in Cab Horse.

Apache Nell, on the morning of a sunny day, wandered afar from the purlieus of the town. Two miles from Cab Horse she came to a cluster of scrubby trees and halted to enjoy their slender shade. In the act of brushing her moist forehead with a dainty cambric handkerchief she paused, and her eyes lighted.

From somewhere came a sound—and the sound was the voice of Charley White lifted in song.

Nell secreted herself skillfully and waited.

Charley approached from the opposite direction. Harmony welled from him like a long pent-up oil well in the first fine, careless rapture of its shooting, and the echoes wound their tuneful way over the smiling land.

When he had reached the knot of trees Nell suddenly stepped into the road before him.

"I thought," she said sternly, "that you couldn't sing! Why have you deceived Mr. Howe and me and everybody? Explain!"

Charley removed his hat and hung his head.

"Your throat is perfectly right, isn't it?" Nell demanded.

Charley nodded dismally.

"Then why?" Nell asked.

"I lied about my throat," he replied, slowly. "There has never been anything the matter with it."

"Then why did you stop singing at the Silver Stag?"

"Because, Nell, I have enemies, and because by enemies have threatened to kill me."

The argument then ensuing lasted the greater part of an hour, and when it was ended Charley said:

"For your sake I'll go back. If I am killed my blood is upon your head."

"You will not be killed," Nell said.

The Silver Stag greeted its returning songbird with cheers.

All was festive, and the crowds gathered about the yellow tables and spent money with abandon.

At fifteen minutes past ten Charley White turned into the thrilling oratorio known as the "Wyoming Rag," and at ten-sixteen a party of strangers wandered into the Silver Stag and occupied a table.

There were three men and two women, and their hilarity was unusual, even for a Silver Stag party.

Their voices rose after a time, and Charley glanced over inquiringly.

From laughter the newcomers drifted into earnest conversation, low in tone at first.

One of the men rose and made a sweeping gesture.

The two women shrieked.

The other two men leaped to their feet.

Revolvers were drawn in the twinkling of an eye, and in the twinkling of another eye the regulars of the Silver Stag were underneath tables and the strange party was standing in the center of a cloud of smoke.

Their guns barked viciously.

At the top of a long note Charley White ceased singing abruptly.

Quietly he sank to the stage, his frantic hands tugging at his shirt-band.

Apache Nell reached him first. Her arms were about him when Howe came into the room.

The warm blood trickled through his coat and colored Nell's waist.

"I told you they'd get me," he whispered faintly.

A few hours later, when they had probed into and got the bullet out of his shoulder, Charley White sat up in Doc Meehan's spare bedroom and cast a faint smile at Nell.

"I'm going to get well," he said cheerfully, and Nell patted his hand.

"Of course you are," she replied.

"And we'll be married as soon as I can get on my feet."

Nell agreed.

"You came near chasing your husband-to-be out of the game ahead of his time," the patient continued. "If I were a vindictive sort I might hold it against you. I wonder who that bunch was and what they had against me?"

"They didn't have anything against you," Nell said slowly. "The bullet that hit you was an accidental shot."

"After the warning I had!" he said scornfully. "Don't kid me, Nell. You can't make me believe that."

"The person who wrote you the warning was not the person who shot you," she persisted.

"How do you know that?" Charley asked.

"Because," Nell replied.

"How do you know?" he insisted.

"Do you remember the woman named Cassandra?" she inquired.

He nodded wonderingly.

"Well, there was a time when she got on my nerves with her big, black eyes fastened upon you as you sang.

"I tried to laugh it off, and I couldn't. You simply hypnotized her when you sang, and I felt miserable and—

"Oh, I wrote you that Black Hand letter myself!"

Then Doc Meehan came in with a fresh bandage.

HIS SENTIMENTS

SUFFRAGE BOOMED BY PENNYPACKER

Former Governor Issues Statement For Cause From Hospital Bed

HE WILL VOTE FOR IT

Right Arm Is Broken But He Signs Statement Holding Pen In Left Hand

From his bed in the Pennsylvania Hospital, in Philadelphia, where he is lying with a broken right arm, former Governor and present Public Service Commissioner Samuel W. Pennypacker has given out a statement declaring that he will vote for woman suffrage and that he believes that it is only just that women should have the vote.

SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER.

The broken right arm prevented him from writing the statement himself so he dictated it to his nurse. When it was finished he insisted that he be given a pen so he could sign it. He said that he would not allow a little thing like a broken arm to prevent him from making his declaration for suffrage with all the formality his personal signature could give it. He took the pen in his left hand and wrote his name in full at the bottom of the statement.

The statement is as follows:

It is my expectation to vote in favor of Woman Suffrage when that subject comes before the people for their determination.

I propose so to vote, not because of the thought that giving the right of suffrage to women will necessarily improve political conditions or public service, but because it seems to me to be only just to them that they should have this means of protecting themselves and such property as they may possess.

(Signed)

SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER.

This declaration for suffrage is the second one by an ex-governor of the State. William A. Stone came out for the cause two weeks ago, just after Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh, the present Chief Executive, had given it his endorsement.

Williamsport Grit states editorially: "The opponents of the suffrage movement are futilely trying to push back a tide which will finally engulf them as it has all other opponents of suffrage extension since free government became a force in the world. Trying to stop it by argument is much like attempting to quell a forest fire with a medicine dropper."

DO STOUT LADIES WANT THE VOTE?

Ask Mrs. Grusel, Who Carried 200 Pounds of Suffrage Sentiment into Catawissa

Mrs. Sarah Grusel is 65 years old and weighs 200 pounds. She has raised a family of five—four boys and one girl. They live in a clean and well-kept little home on Catawissa Mountain, two miles from town.

When the Woman's Liberty Bell visited Catawissa recently, the Weather Man was busy demonstrating that September can be made just as warm and uncomfortable as July. He had the thermometer registering 97 degrees in the shade. But that fact didn't bother Mrs. Grusel any more than her 200 pounds, her sixty-five years nor the two mile walk to town. She had made up her mind that she was going to see the bell and join in the demonstration that had been prepared for it.

"You see," she explained to Mrs. Stephen J. Houk, chairman of the Columbia County Suffrage Association, "I want the vote and I want my daughter to have it, so I just naturally had to come along and let you people know about it. I thought that if you knew a big fat woman was willing to walk two miles in the hot sun to show her colors, you younger women who aren't carrying weight or age and can talk suffrage might feel like doing a little extra work on my account. What do you think about it?"

"I think you are fine," said Mrs. Houk, "and there isn't a woman here who won't be glad to do all the extra work she can to get the ballot for you and your daughter on election day."

"Well," said the stout lady, casting an approving eye over the goodly crowd of both men and women gathered about the bell, "if that's the case, we'll win sure. But my sakes, hasn't it been a long time coming!"

THE PATRIOTIC VIEW

If you are a man who loves your country, don't you know there can be no other act so patriotic as to dedicate to its services the sex that has been the conscience-keeper of the world for ages?

Vote "YES" on the suffrage amendment.

MOTORMEN AND CONDUCTORS ENDORSE WOMAN SUFFRAGE

At the fourteenth biennial convention of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employees of America, held in Rochester, N. Y., September 18, equal suffrage was dealt with in a manner that left no doubt as to the Association's stand on the question. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That we go on record as heartily endorsing the woman's suffrage bills now before the voters of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and such other States that may have voted to refer the matter to the people for their decision, and that we earnestly request our members in these States to do all in their power to pass these progressive measures to end sex discrimination."

The Amalgamated Association is particularly strong in Pennsylvania. It has thousands of members in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and all the important cities of the State and among the men on the various interurban lines.

BABY'S SECOND YEAR

DEVELOPMENT THEN DEPENDS ON PROPER FOOD.

The Following Sample Meals for a Healthy Child May Be Given With Perfect Safety—List of "Tastes" to Be Avoided.

(Prepared by [illegible] U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

After the baby is finally weaned from the breast at about one year of age, he too often seems to have a set back. His development does not progress as satisfactorily as during the first year, and the regular gain in weight does not proceed as before.

The trouble usually lies in the baby's failure properly to digest the new foods given to him at this period. In addition to foods suitable for the period between nine and twelve months, after he is a year old he may have a small saucer of well-cooked strained cereal twice a day, and will require about one quart of milk during 24 hours.

At fifteen months he may have a little rare beef, or well-cooked chicken or mutton. Meat for a baby should be boiled, roasted or broiled, never fried and should be given to the baby scraped or finely minced.

The following are sample meals for a day for a healthy child from eighteen months to two years old. (An ounce is two tablespoonfuls.)

7 a. m.—Milk 8 to 10 ounces; piece of zwieback, toast or dried bread.

9 a. m.—Orange juice 2 ounces.

10 a. m.—Cereal, 2 tablespoonfuls; cup milk, toast or dry bread.

2 p. m.—Broth, 6 ounces, meat, 1 tablespoonful vegetable (spinach), 1 tablespoonful, stale bread, 1 piece; baked apple 1 tablespoonful.

6 p. m.—Cereal 1½ tablespoonfuls; milk 6 to 8 ounces; toast or bread.

10 p. m.—Milk, 8 ounces in cup (may be omitted).

The following rules for cooking and preparing certain of these articles may be helpful to mothers.

Toast.—Bread one day old, cut in very thin slices; slices placed on edge in a toast rack in an oven to dry. Leave oven door partly open.

Broth.—Of round steak, one pound; of water, one pint. Put the meat on in cold water and allow it to come to a boil, then lower the flame so that it barely simmers for three or four hours. Remove the meat and add enough water to make up the original amount of liquid; strain through a wire sieve and set aside to cool. When cold the fat is removed in a solid piece, leaving a clear liquid or jelly. Heat a small portion when it is time to feed the baby. Keep the jelly covered and on ice.

Meat.—One tablespoonful. Take meat, round or sirloin steak, scraped with a silver spoon. When you have the desired amount, shape into a pat and broil on a hot, dry spider. When done, add a little salt.

Or, a piece of rare round or sirloin steak the outer part having been cut away, is scraped or shredded with a knife.

Spinach.—Cook spinach in salted water until tender. Pour cold water over it and drain. Rub through a fine sieve.

Baked Apple.—Apple baked three-quarters of an hour. Skin and core removed, two tablespoonfuls of pulp strained through sieve.

Cereal, Flour Preparations.—Cereal preparation, three-quarters of a cupful cooked with one quart of water for three-quarters of an hour in double boiler. Add enough water to keep moist.

Oatmeal.—Have a pint of water boiling in the top of the double boiler; add one-half teaspoonful of salt and drop in gradually one-half cupful of oatmeal flakes, stirring all the while. Cook for three hours and strain through a wire sieve. Pour on it one to two ounces of milk.

It is important, also, to know what not to feed the baby. It is a great temptation to please the baby by giving him "tastes" of various kinds of foods, especially when he is fretful. But this will almost surely result in his harm. Never give him candy, cakes, doughnuts, pastry, fresh bread, griddle cakes, sirup or molasses, pork or tough meat of any kind, bananas overripe fruits, pickles, tea, coffee, soda water or beer, nor the meats, vegetables and other things appearing on the family table.

Jam-Making Time.

Jam-making time is beginning and it is a good plan to always grease the bottom of the preserving pan with best olive oil before putting in the fruit, for it prevents the jam from burning. Also add a lump of butter about as big as a walnut for every six pounds of fruit, putting it in when the jam comes to the boil after the sugar has been added and let melt.

By the way, one should never let jam boil after the sugar is put in till it has really melted, or the jam will go thin.

Stewed Prunes.

Take a pound of prunes, wash them carefully and put them in a stew pan with the grated rind of a lemon, a little cinnamon and allspice and three tablespoons of sugar. Cover with cold water and boil until soft. Serve warm or cold.

Stenciling Curtains.

When stenciling curtains make the colors a little darker than you wish them to appear. When hung at the windows the colors seem lighter than they really are.

Regulating Electric Lamps.

The demand for regulating the degree of light from an electric lamp has resulted in a lamp which has been recently exploited, containing two separate filaments of the lamp, which may be operated separately or together, giving the lamp a rating of 200 watts, with each filament taking 100 watts. A consumption of 0.6 watt per candlepower is claimed for this lamp, and it has a life of 2,000 hours if the filaments are burned separately, or 1,000 when they are burned together.

Happiness.

"I have tried all sorts of happiness, and it never lasts" said a spoiled, petulant, cynical woman.

Errors of History.

William Tell was a myth.

Coriolanus never allowed his mother to intercede for Rome.

The duke of Wellington never uttered the famous words, "Up guards, and at them!"

Alfred never allowed the cakes to burn nor ventured into the Danish camp disguised as a minstrel.

Fair Rosamund was not poisoned by Queen Eleanor, but died in the odor of sanctity in the convent of Godstow.

Charles Kingsley gave up his chair of modern history at Oxford because he said he considered history "largely a lie."

Chemists have proved that vinegar will not dissolve pearls or cleave rocks, in spite of the fabled exploits of Cleopatra and Hannibal.

The siege of Troy is largely a myth, even according to Homer's own account. Helen must have been sixty years old when Paris fell in love with her.

The number of Xerxes' army has been grossly exaggerated and it was not stopped at Thermopylae by 300 Spartans, but by 7,000, or even, as some authors compute, 12,000.

Philip VI, flying from the field of Crecy and challenged later before the gates of the castle of Elois, did not cry out: "It is the fortune of France." What he really said was: "Open, open; it is the unfortunate king of France."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Base Deception.

Rankin—That's the greatest skin game I ever saw.

Phyle—What do you mean?

"That show advertises a tattooed man."

"Well?"

"And the gink inside is simply covered with transfer pictures."
